Educational materials for teachers of English (grades 5-11) One of the key tasks of English teachers for international students is to provide convenient tools for collaboration. If provided, students can be given the opportunity to complete and write down homework assignments during the school day. Computer programs that can be used in the classroom can be as handy as they are in everyday life, but can still be left out of the main discussion during the course. Designed for learning tasks, computer programs are sure to be useful, especially if you use them in conjunction with other tools: specialized training programs, distance learning systems, online dictionaries, etc. Flexible Pocket Paper for Homework FLEXIBELT for doing lessons Electronic notebook for completing assignments TeamFinder for organizing group English assignments Lessons (text, audio and video) for simulators Videos in automatic mode MultiLanguage Flexisphere for doing exercises and working with answers MambaTest to run a test

Among the various tools for teaching English, there are some that are especially useful when teaching students from other countries. Most English teachers take into account basic language skills such as reading, writing and listening to help students learn the language. At the same time, there are various study programs that have different objectives, such as teaching English as a foreign language. Specific English language courses may be assigned to such courses, which may include topics such as Reading, Grammar, Listening and English Conversation. Audio-visual methods are often used as the main approach for learning foreign languages. In addition to this, this article offers several educational materials that will help teachers with the organization of teaching in the audiovisual methodology. These materials are intended only for teachers and are aimed at developing skills in working with them. Where can you find these learning materials? These teaching materials are sold on the TeachingWell website. TeachingsWell has hundreds of digital textbooks for you to download for free
