Works well with applications such as iTunes, QuickTime Player, or any application that can play AVFoundation/QuickTime movies. With this technology, you can insert video and audio recordings, show presentations and slides directly from programs.

Frequencies are presented as frequency ranges. The widest frequency range is from 14 to 18 megahertz, which means that the faster your video card, the higher frequencies it will support. By default, the program automatically adjusts playback speeds for all applications. This allows you not only to speed up the work with programs, but also to customize several applications to suit your needs. In addition, the program calculates how many slots for installing audio and video codecs should be in your video
